

A Traveler's Tale by Vidya Devi Ramdhan

About the Author & Book:

I was born in 1944 in a small rice farming village in Guyana, but that is only where this traveler's tale began. At age eighteen I left behind the warmth and security of my modest village in search of my greatest adventure of all. The adventure that would take me from familiar tropical landscapes to the structured halls of nursing wards in foggy London. Despite the far and wide travels of my life, the heart of my village and my humbling beginnings never traveled away from me. Here I tell the tale of that journey.

In this, her timeless memoir, Vidya recants a captivating and often humorous tale of globe trotting, falling in love, forming friendships, conquering fears and ultimately living a life less ordinary.
