

An International Conference

22-24 March 2017, Girit Centre, Lautoka

Introduction: The end of slavery by 1833 gave rise to a new form of Slavery called Indian Indenture System. Under this, over 1 million workers from India were taken to a number of British colonies between 1834 and 1917. These included: Mauritius (453,063), British Guiana (238,909), Trinidad (143,939), Natal/South Africa (152,184), Fiji (60,965), Jamaica (36,412), Suriname (34,304), East Africa (32,000), Reunion Island (26,507), and in smaller numbers to Grenada, St Lucia, St Kitts, St Vincent, Seychelles, Malaysia, Guadeloupe, Martinique, Belize (Br. Honduras), Dutch St. Croix, and Fr. Guiana. This was the world's second largest wave of movement of people globally under any formally organized system of movement of people.

New recruitment for indentured work outside India ended on 12 March 1917. Ongoing indenture contracts were terminated from 1 January 1920 onwards.

As such, 12 March 2017 marks the centennial of the official abolition of carriage of Indian workers for Indentureship abroad.

The history and consequences of Indian Indentureship are deeply embedded with importance, meaningful history and reflections to millions of descendants living in these countries, as well as the twice migrating generations now staying in USA, Canada, UK, Netherlands, France, Australia, New Zealand, and other countries. These have also shaped the histories of a number of countries, including Fiji.

To commemorate the centennial of the abolishment of Indenture, also commonly known as Girit System, a number of events are planned worldwide. One of these is this conference in Lautoka, Fiji.

Objective: The primary objective of the conference is to facilitate discourse on all aspects related to Girit, in Giritiya countries and in others where Giritiya descendants have migrated. Any and every aspect of Girit and its descendants from 1834 onwards is covered.
